

Once there lived a lion named Jasper in the great green jungle. Jasper was not like other lions. He was not only brave and strong, but also very observant and thoughtful. He always cared about others and wanted everyone in the jungle to be happy.

One sunny morning, while walking in the jungle, Jasper heard a loud cry for help. It came from a little bird caught in a net. Without hesitation, Jasper rushed to help. With his powerful claws, he carefully cut through the net and freed the bird.

“Thank you, Jasper! You saved me!” the bird chirped happily.

Jasper smiled and said, “I’m glad I could help. I believe in helping others whenever I can.”

From that day on, Jasper became known as the kindest and most attentive lion in the jungle. Animals from all over came to him for advice and assistance.

But one day, the jungle faced a great difficulty. The animals struggled to find food and water during a severe drought.

Jasper gathered all the animals and came up with a plan. Instead of each animal searching for food and water individually, they would work as a team. Some animals hunted, some gathered fruit, and others dug for water.

Thanks to Jasper’s well-thought-out plan, the animals survived the drought together. They realized that by helping each other and working as a team, they could overcome any challenge.

The moral of the story is: “Unity is strength.” If we work together and help each other, we can achieve great things. Like Jasper, being thoughtful and caring can make all the difference in the world.
